SPLC fights back against bigotry in White House

The Southern Poverty Law Center took strong action to protect our country's fundamental values following a presidential election that electrified far-right extremists and ushered a white nationalist agenda into the White House.

Immediately after the vote, the SPLC exposed a wave of hate crimes and other bias-related incidents that swept the country.

It documented a surge of classroom bigotry spawned by President Donald Trump's xenophobic rhetoric – and created resources to help teachers protect vulnerable students from harassment.

And it played a key role in helping the media and public understand the extremist ties of some of Trump's appointees and closest advisers – including Stephen Bannon, who helped nurture a growing white nationalist movement.

The SPLC also began pushing back in the courts against a White House that appears set on rolling back decades of progress.

"Our country hasn't seen this kind of extremism in the White House in modern times, if ever," SPLC President Richard Cohen said. "But, at the same time, our country's ideals of equality and justice are deeply rooted and our democracy is resilient."

"We've been encouraged by the powerful outpouring of support for our work and by the millions of people who have taken to the streets to express their disgust at the president's policies."

White supremacists were ecstatic on election night.

Many expressed the belief that they finally had a friend in the White House.

Racists rejoice

Former Ku Klux Klan leader David Duke, perhaps the nation's best-known racist, wrote that it was "one of the most exciting nights of my life. Make no mistake ... our people played a HUGE role in electing Trump!"

Days later, about 200 white nationalists met just a few blocks from the White House and shouted "Hail Trump! Hail Our People! Hail Victory!" as their leader quoted propaganda from the Third Reich and prompted sieg heils from the audience.

Immediately after the election, hate-fueled violence and intimidation broke out across the country.

In response, the SPLC quickly assembled a team of researchers and began to document the incidents related to the campaign – swastikas painted on churches, mosques vandalized,

Hate groups rise, fueled by Trump campaign

The number of hate groups in the United States rose for a second year in a row in 2016 as the radical right was energized by the candidacy of Donald Trump, the Southern Poverty Law Center has found.

The most dramatic growth was the near-tripling of anti-Muslim hate groups – from 34 in 2015 to 101 last year.

The growth has been accompanied by a rash of crimes targeting Muslims, including an arson that destroyed a mosque in Victoria, Texas, just hours after the Trump administration announced an executive order suspending travel from some predominantly Muslim countries.

The hate group increase was fueled by Trump's incendiary rhetoric, including his campaign pledge to bar Muslims from entering the United States, and anger over terrorist attacks such as the June massacre of 49 people at a gay nightclub in Orlando.

'Unprecedented year for hate'
The SPLC reported the findings of its annual hate group census in the Spring 2017 issue of the Intelligence Report. It can be read at www.splcenter.org, where readers will find an interactive map showing the names, types and locations of hate groups across the country.

The total number of hate groups operating in 2016 rose to 917 – up from 892 in 2015. The number is 101 shy of the all-time record set in 2011, but high by historic standards.

"2016 was an unprecedented year for hate," said Mark Potok, senior fellow and editor of the Intelligence Report. "The country saw a resurgence of white nationalism that imperils the racial progress we've made, along with the rise of a president whose policies reflect the values of white nationalists. In chief White House strategist Steve Bannon, these extremists think they finally have an ally who has the president's ear."

The overall number of hate groups likely understates the real level of organized hatred in America as a growing number of extremists operate mainly online and are not formally affiliated with hate groups.

Aside from its annual census of extremist groups, the SPLC found that Trump's rhetoric reverberated across the nation in other ways.

In the first two weeks after his election, the SPLC documented more than 1,000 bias-related incidents across the country.

Also, in two SPLC surveys – during and after the campaign – educators said the climate at their schools had been negatively affected. Many described heightened anxiety and fear among students whose race, ethnicity or religion was targeted by Trump or other candidates.

Numerous teachers reported widespread bullying and the use of slurs, derogatory language and extremist symbols in their classrooms.

'Patriot' groups decline

In contrast to the growth of hate groups, antigovernment "Patriot" groups saw a 38 percent decline – plummeting from 998 groups in 2015 to 623 last year. Composed of armed militiamen and others who see the federal government as their enemy, the "Patriot" movement over the past few decades has flourished under Democratic administrations, but it declined dramatically when President George W. Bush occupied the White House.

Even before Trump's victory, energy was draining from antigovernment groups as the Republican nominee co-opted some of their key issues.

A MESSAGE FROM SPLC PRESIDENT RICHARD COHEN

Administration's lies test democracy

Facts are stubborn things. So said John Adams, our second president, who added, “[W] hatever may be our wishes, our inclinations, or the dictates of our passion, they cannot alter the state of facts and evidence.”

Those are wise words from one of our Founding Fathers.

Our 45th president would do a great service to the country and the world by heeding them.

Adams, a highly esteemed lawyer and statesmen who helped lead America’s rebellion against the monarchy of England, realized early on that the new nation’s success rested on the rule of law. We would be a nation of laws, not men.

But, as everyone who has ever watched a courtroom drama on TV knows, the rule of law is meaningless if divorced from facts. There’s a reason why the words “truth and justice” roll off the tongue so well.

‘Enemy of the people’

Of course, Adams could never have envisioned the age of the cyberspace, where misinformation, propaganda and outright falsehoods are just a mouse click away, existing alongside of and masquerading as truth.

He could not have imagined the world of Alex Jones, the internet radio host whose fact-free conspiracy theories and paranoid worldview not only fuel the fantasies and prejudices of far-right extremists but now command the attention of millions of people.

And he probably would be aghast to hear the president of the United States repeatedly uttering outright lies, all while accusing serious journalists of purveying “fake news” and describing the press as “the enemy of the American people.”

Yet, this is where we are in 2017. And our democracy is facing a test of its strength and resilience.

Over the past few years, we’ve seen extremist propaganda leap from the fringes to the very center of American politics. In some ways, the election of Donald Trump, a former “reality” show star, was a product of this phenomenon.

Our president, in fact, seems to be dwelling in a land of what his aide Kellyanne Conway has called “alternative facts.”

Trump apparently is a big fan of Alex Jones, who recently said he speaks with the president on the phone. In 2015, Trump appeared on Jones’ radio show and pronounced his reputation “amazing.” That’s quite a compliment for a man who has claimed that the Sandy Hook massacre was a government act and that Hillary Clinton “has personally murdered and chopped up and raped” children.

Be outraged

Like Jones, Trump has a long history of mendacity. He was the most prominent of the “birthers,” the conspiracy theorists who falsely claimed President Barack Obama was born in Kenya. During his campaign, he trafficked in misinformation, like the time he told an audience in California that “there is no drought,” an obvious misstatement that was similar to an earlier Alex Jones claim.

Now that he is president, the falsehood machine is firing on all cylinders.

Right off the bat, Trump’s spokesman wrongly claimed his inauguration crowd was the largest in history. Then the president claimed repeatedly – and falsely – that millions of people had illegally voted for Hillary Clinton, giving her the popular vote victory. He alleged, without any evidence, that the news media has covered up terrorist attacks by Muslims, another echo of Jones. He suggested there was a terrorist attack in Sweden when there was none. Conway, meanwhile, went on MSNBC and referred to a “Bowling Green massacre” that never happened.

To their credit, many journalists have pushed back hard against the lies. But the Trump team appears unfazed.

Stephen Bannon, a champion of white nationalists and now Trump’s chief strategist, told The New York Times that the media should “keep its mouth shut and just listen for a while.”

In other words, stop reporting the facts because they put the lie to Trump’s alternative reality and his extreme agenda. Just listen to Trump.

This is what dictators and tyrants do. To maintain their propaganda, they must muzzle the media and other institutions that reveal the facts, the objective information that informs policy decisions and makes democracy work.

We should all be outraged – and more than a little unnerved.

Facts are, indeed, stubborn things. Yet, these days, so are lies. In the long term, I’m betting on the facts.

MAILBOX

Thank you for your “year-end” message. I deeply appreciate reading specifics about your efforts fighting systemic racism, poverty and hate. I felt unexpectedly energized reading your successes and almost a glimmer of hope learning a bit about your impending lawsuits and ongoing education and training.

Your creative, multi-pronged approach to these problems lifts me just above the overwhelming waters to catch a breath of fresh air. And accomplishing the goals that absolutely must be achieved to make our communities livable. Your work enables dignity to flourish.

K.A.
Lakewood, Colorado

Today, on Inauguration Day, my 9th grade students and I had a brilliant discussion and analyzed the information on hate crimes in the SPLC’s “Ten Days After” publication. I told them we are lucky to have the work of this organization to compile reports and meticulously flesh-out these trends, because it is important to have data to support opinions and ideas regarding leadership.

This has helped empower my students to realize how unique their placement on this globe is: We are a remarkably diverse student population, and I have no doubt that their exposure to a variety of different religions, cultures, nationalities, ethnicities, and races on our high school campus will give them invaluable perspective as they lead our nation today and in the future.

Thank you so much for this report and the work you do.

K.L.
Phoenix, Arizona

I can’t tell you how relieved and grateful I felt when I received your email regarding the Senate Committee on Homeland Security about the appointment of Steve Bannon to the National Security Council. I had been casting about since Sunday morning for the best way to express my alarm and opposition. To all of you at the SPLC, thank you from the bottom of my heart for your courage in protecting our democracy and human rights.

Wellesley, Massachusetts

I am very discouraged and disappointed with the winter issue of the SPLC Report. The overall theme of this report is a focus on Mr. Trump and seems to link him to perhaps a few hundred people who may have voted for him. I say perhaps because clearly some of the hate graffiti has been found to be created by progressive supporters intending specifically to blame Trump supporters. I ask that you think about the other side.

R.V.
Columbus, Indiana

I can’t tell you how many times during this past troublesome year, when everything I believe seems to be on the chopping block, that I remember the SPLC. You are a beacon in the dark by which we can set our course, and for that I will always be grateful. I wish you the very best.

H.L.
Spring Valley, California

I was happy to make a tribute gift donation in honor of my mother. At 72 years old, she was alive when America was apparently, according to Trump, “great” – I guess “great” means when African Americans and women, like my mother, had it somewhat harder. I want for my mother never to see those days again. She has tolerated so much but rose to become a Georgia lawyer with her own practice.

Today, she thrives, healthy and active and with a positive attitude, great wit and friends from all races and religions. I’m glad to help and will continue to support the SPLC as much as I can. My mother and I are thankful for your entire staff and all that they do (and did!) to combat racism and injustice.

E.A.

My occasional donor activity waned in recent years, but this note is just a simple thank you for keeping us on your newsletter mailing list. The work you do tirelessly over the years is greatly respected. To confirm this, our family has pledged to become monthly contributors to the SPLC again to support your work and stand against hate groups and crimes fertilized by our new president and his radical followers.

SPLC fights hate in the White House

Latinos intimidated with racist slurs, and much more.

In the first two weeks, the SPLC counted more than 1,000 acts of harassment aimed at Muslims, Jews, women, African Americans, the LGBT community and others. A mother in Colorado reported, for example, that a boy told her 12-year-old African-American daughter, "Now that Trump is president, I'm going to shoot you and all the blacks I can find."

The SPLC's work provided the national news media with a rich trove of information to report on the phenomenon, sparking widespread condemnation.

An extremist White House

Trump wasted little time in confirming that he would govern the same way he campaigned.

One of his first appointments was Bannon as chief White House strategist. Bannon, the former head of Breitbart News, has bragged about transforming the Breitbart website into "the platform for the alt-right." The alt-right is simply a rebranded white nationalist movement.

One of Bannon's former associates has said that under his guidance, Breitbart became a "cesspool of white supremacists[m]."

Alarmed by the Bannon appointment, the SPLC launched a petition calling for his removal. More than 500,000 people had signed it by mid-February.

Now, Bannon is arguably Trump's closest adviser.

During and after the transition, the SPLC helped the news media and the public connect the dots between Trump and the far-right extremists he has installed in the administration.

They included retired Lt. Gen. Michael Flynn, who was was ousted as national security adviser in February. Flynn is a conspiracy theorist who has close ties to the anti-Muslim hate group ACT for America and has characterized Islam as a "political philosophy" that's "like a malignant cancer."

Another extreme pick was Julie Kirchner, named chief of staff for U.S. Customs and Border Protection. Kirchner is the former executive director of the Federation for American Immigration Reform, an anti-immigrant hate group.

The SPLC also opposed a number of Trump's choices for Cabinet posts, including the billionaire heiress Betsy DeVos for education secretary and Alabama Sen. Jeff Sessions for attorney general.

DeVos has spent decades undermining public education and seeking to divert public funds to private schools. She is associated with foundations that have donated millions to anti-LGBT extremist groups.

Sessions has long been the most important ally of anti-Muslim and anti-immigrant extremists in the U.S. Senate. Just two years ago, he praised a racist 1924 immigration law that was repealed in 1965, calling it "good for America." The law banned Asian immigration and imposed a racial quota system targeting Jews, Italians, Africans, Middle Easterners and other immigrants who weren't at the time considered "white."

In the courts

With his executive order barring Syrian refugees indefinitely and suspending travel from seven Muslim-majority countries, Trump appears to have already overstepped his authority.

The order was blocked nationwide by a federal court in Seattle, a ruling supported by the SPLC in a friend-of-the-court brief filed with the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, which then upheld the lower court ruling. The SPLC brief argued that by singling out Muslims, Trump violated the Constitution's prohibition of discrimination based on religion.

The fight over the Muslim ban marked the beginning of what promises to be a series of legal battles against the Trump administration.

The SPLC is prepared to push back in the courts.

"We will respond vigorously in the courts to any attempt to undermine the progress our country has made toward equality and to protect the civil and human rights of those who are being targeted by unjust or unlawful policies," Cohen said.

To begin with, the SPLC has launched a project to provide legal representation to people in the Southeast whose rights may be trampled by Trump's immigration enforcement plans.

The SPLC is recruiting lawyers to work pro bono to protect the due process rights of everyone caught up in an immigration raid in the region and to ensure that immigration detention facilities pass constitutional muster.

With Sessions as attorney general, the SPLC and other civil rights advocates also fear that civil rights enforcement by the U.S. Justice Department will fall by the wayside.

"We'll have to redouble our efforts to protect the most marginalized people in our country – the poor, the disadvantaged and those targeted by bigotry and discrimination," Cohen said. "We're proud to have our many supporters standing shoulder to shoulder with us."

INTELLIGENCE BRIEFS

'Sovereign citizen' charged with kidnapping

POLK CITY, Fla. – Ronnie Davis, 48, an antigovernment "sovereign citizen" extremist, was charged in November with kidnapping a woman who says she was held captive more than three months.

Angela Yaeger, 43, came to Davis' heavily armed compound to study with his "Bears Law and Forensic Science Team," which purports to help reunite children with their families, according to The Ledger newspaper. She told deputies she was forbidden from leaving and used a ruse to escape.

Davis' "law" group has reportedly interfered in child custody cases, though he is not licensed to practice law in Florida, and it is unclear whether he is licensed to practice in any state or even attended law school.

White supremacist sentenced to death for jail murder

SALEM, Ore. – After less than a half hour of deliberation in October, a jury sentenced David Ray Bartol, 45, to death for the jailhouse murder of Gavin Siscl.

The former member of a white supremacist gang known as the Rude Krude Brood crafted a shank and repeatedly stabbed Siscl in the eye as he watched television at the Marion County Jail.

Bartol, who has a 30-year criminal record, called the murder a "free kill for my trophy room."

At the time, Bartol was awaiting trial on a robbery charge after earlier being convicted in Portland of attempted murder and sentenced to 55 years in prison. In that crime, he used an industrial belt sander to remove a tattoo from a fellow gang member and shot another.

White supremacist confesses to killing black man

FORT WAYNE, Ind. – Aaryn Snyder, 31, a self-described white supremacist, was arrested Oct. 14 and confessed to the murder of a black man. According to police, Snyder stabbed Samuel Hardrix, 22, in the backyard of a home during the early morning hours.

Snyder called the stabbing "a hate crime," telling police he killed Hardrix because he was black. He confessed to a corrections officer at Allen County Jail, where he was imprisoned at the time for failing to register as a sex offender.

Snyder also told detectives that he stabbed Hardrix because the victim called him "a child molester," according to court documents. Those documents also state that "this is not the first person he has stabbed or killed" since becoming a "patched" member of an unnamed white supremacist gang in 2003.

Antigov extremist pleads guilty to illegal firearms

JOHN DAY, Ore. – Michael Ray Emry, 54, pleaded guilty Jan. 23 to illegally possessing a fully automatic .50-caliber machine gun capable of firing 550 to 650 rounds per minute.

Authorities said Emry stole the gun from a shop where he worked and was negotiating its sale to an undercover officer posing as a captain in a Texas-based militia.

Emry participated in the 41-day occupation of the Malheur National Wildlife Refuge in 2016, acting as a "reporter" for the antigovernment website The Voice of Idaho, but he was not among the militia extremists charged.

In a jailhouse interview with The Oregonian after his arrest, Emry described himself as the "Picasso of machine guns" and "a self-taught bomb maker."

He earlier said he moved to John Day following the militia siege at the Malheur refuge to "start up a media venture with pro-militia leanings."

Skinhead arrested on gun and drug charges

GALETON, Pa. – Longtime white supremacist Ronald "Dozer" Pulcher II, 34, was arrested Oct. 29 and charged with multiple felonies after a search by state parole officers turned up weapons in his home.

Pulcher is a convicted felon and member of Aryan Strikeforce, a skinhead group that is part of a larger racist coalition called the Nationalist Front. The Nationalist Front is affiliated with the Traditionalist Workers Party, a group headed by white nationalist and college campus organizer Matthew Heimbach.

Pulcher's arrest was the latest example of criminality associated with the Nationalist Front, despite claims from the Traditionalist Workers Party and Heimbach that their mission is dedicated to "faith, family and folk."

Pulcher has a lengthy arrest record, including a charge for aggravated assault against a black man that landed him in prison a 10-year sentence.

SPLC spotlights anti-LGBT hate group

Several years ago, the Southern Poverty Law Center published a report about a legal battle in the Central American country of Belize involving a U.S. group working to preserve a law making homosexuality a crime.

The law was overturned.

But it was just one of the many battles waged by the Alliance Defending Freedom (ADF) in the U.S. and abroad against what the group calls a "homosexual agenda" that would destroy Christianity and, eventually, civilization.

The SPLC named the ADF a hate group because of its promotion of demonizing falsehoods about the LGBT community.

The ADF, based in Scottsdale, Arizona, was founded in 1994 by some 30 leaders of the Christian Right. Today, it coordinates and trains a network of hundreds of private lawyers in an effort to deny rights to LGBT people.

The group pushes for a hard-line Christian theocracy that is counter to the separation of church and state enshrined in the U.S. Constitution. The website of its secretive Blackstone Legal Fellowship program, for example, says the ADF "seeks to recover the robust Christendom theology of the 3rd, 4th, and 5th centuries."

Hateful rhetoric

Here are some examples of the ADF's rhetoric:

- Its longtime president, Alan Sears, has written that "homosexual behavior" and pedophilia are "intrinsically linked" and claimed that schools are "indoctrinating children" into homosexuality. The reality is that virtually all real medical associations have debunked the claim that gay men molest children at higher rates than straight men.

- Charles LiMandri, an ADF-affiliated attorney, wrote in 2015 that the promotion of LGBT rights has led to the "inevitable and aggressive persecution of devout Christians."

- ADF Senior Counsel Erik Stanley said in 2014 that the "endgame of the homosexual agenda is unfettered sexual liberty and silencing of all dissent."

- Former ADF Legal Counsel Piero Tozzi told a 2012 religious-right conference in Madrid that those who wanted to "advance the homosexual agenda" need to "control the educational system" so they can "desensitize and corrupt young minds, both to undermine resistance ... and for recruitment among those that are at an emotionally vulnerable stage of development."

SPLC trial over lack of mental health treatment in Alabama prisons concludes MONTGOMERY, Ala. – As the first witness in the SPLC's case against the Alabama Department of Corrections (ADOC), Jamie Wallace showed the scars on his neck and back – telltale signs of the cuts he had opened and re-opened with razors and improvised blades.

The prisoner, who suffered from bipolar disorder and schizophrenia, told of being held for long periods in an isolation cell, where he had nothing to do “but pace the floor.”

An expert witness for the SPLC heard the 24-year-old pleading from his cell: “This place is killing me. Please get me out of here.”

Ten days after Wallace’s testimony, the prisoner was found dead. He had hanged himself, just after a stay in a suicide watch cell. He was one of more than a dozen Alabama prisoners who had taken their own lives over the previous year.

Locked away and forgotten

The jarring turn of events gave new urgency to the lawsuit in which the SPLC has accused the state of failing to provide a constitutional level of care to prisoners with mental health conditions.

Over a two-month trial that ended in early February, the SPLC portrayed a prison system that rarely connects prisoners with their mental health caregivers – a system that fails to provide them with a safe environment and the therapy they need, or even identify those who most need help.

It’s a system in which staffers are quick to give involuntary medication, fatally slow to respond to prisoners’ suicidal thoughts and keen on saving money when they can.

“No one in Alabama’s prisons was sentenced to this kind of suffering,” said Maria Morris, SPLC senior staff attorney and lead counsel in the case. “To be locked away in isolation and forgotten by the prison system, just because of a mental illness, is a punishment that fits no crime.”

Prison officials had little to say in their defense, other than to blame the Alabama Legislature, citing funding cuts and staffing shortages.

Officials with MHM Correctional Services, the for-profit company hired by ADOC to provide mental health care, pinned the blame on a lack of resources, the difficulty of recruiting staff, and the thin ranks of security officers that leave the prisons unsafe for their employees.

U.S. District Judge Myron Thompson is expected to issue a ruling within the next few months.

A second trial, expected later this year, will focus on the SPLC’s allegations that the state also routinely ignores the medical needs of prisoners.

Horrors of isolation

Prisoners and expert witnesses alike told the judge about horrific conditions, especially in the spaces designated for mental health treatment.

Among them was Dr. Craig Haney, a nationally renowned prison psychology expert who toured some of the prisons.

“The conditions of the Holman [Correctional Facility] segregation unit are really difficult to capture in words,” Haney said. He described having to step over a puddle of urine in front of one cell and hearing “screaming, shouting ... people yelling, ‘Please help me.’”

Shocking and surprising

At Donaldson Correctional Facility, he found therapeutic cells to be virtually identical to Alabama’s harshest solitary confinement cells.

It was there that he met Jamie Wallace.

“The level of desperation among the prisoners who were housed there, the physical conditions ... were striking and surprising,” Haney said. “Certainly the level of desperation among the prisoners did not suggest that they were in a therapeutic environment.”

“It suggested something quite the opposite.”

Haney said the prison system so blurs the line between therapy and solitary confinement that it “conflates punishment and treatment in terms of the harshness of the conditions.”

One man, identified as M.P., testified that he was held in solitary confinement for six years – in a cell smaller than a parking space, with no central air during Alabama’s brutally hot summers. He said he survived several suicide attempts and heard voices in his head saying, “It’s not worth it. Give up.”

Even the chief psychiatrist for MHM, Dr. Robert Hunter, testified that “it’s generally recognized that prolonged segregation is deleterious to a person’s mental health.”

But it continued, even after a discussion about the rising number of suicides.

As prison system officials and others took the witness stand, ADOC’s failure to take responsibility became a common theme.

When Anna Davis-Walker, one of MHM’s top managers in the state, was asked who takes responsibility for implementing plans to correct problems, she dodged the question.

A frustrated Judge Thompson questioned Davis-Walker himself.

“Where does the buck stop?” he asked.

“It doesn’t stop with anyone,” she answered.

Teaching Tolerance responds to election’s negative impact

“Several students told me that you couldn’t be American unless you were white and spoke English.”

— HIGH SCHOOL TEACHER IN MARYLAND

“Students came to school the day after the election and told Native American kids they were going to get deported! They are drawing swastikas on their hands. They are again proud of their hate, which they call heritage.”

— HIGH SCHOOL TEACHER IN MICHIGAN

“An African-American child was asked if she was ready for shackles because she was going back to Africa. [W]ith tear-filled eyes she asked me: ‘Can Donald Trump really do that?’ We had a group of boys telling Latina American children to pack their things because ‘they were going back to Mexico.’ Countless issues, very sad.”

— ELEMENTARY SCHOOL COUNSELOR IN FLORIDA

The words at left were among more than 25,000 responses submitted by educators to a Teaching Tolerance survey designed to measure the impact of the election on classrooms.

An initial SPLC survey last spring found that many children were frightened by the bigotry and derogatory language they were hearing in the campaign and worried about their safety.

“We discovered that the campaign was producing an alarming level of fear and anxiety among children of color and inflaming racial and ethnic tensions in the classroom,” said Teaching Tolerance Director Maureen Costello. “Many students thought they or their families would be deported after the election.”

Uptick in bullying

The latest survey offers the richest source of information about the immediate impact of the election. Many teachers pointed out that the incidents of bullying and harassment they were reporting represented a distinct uptick and could be traced directly to the results of the election.

In response, Teaching Tolerance created a guide to help schools ensure a safe, welcoming and equitable for all children. Additionally, the latest Teaching Tolerance magazine contains resources to combat anti-Muslim sentiments and help teachers be advocates for immigrant and refugee students.

“Our resources will play a key role in helping teachers, principals and district leaders heal the rifts within school communities,” Costello said.

TEACHING TOLERANCE CONNECTS STUDENTS, PRESIDENT

Shortly after the highly divisive presidential election, the SPLC’s Teaching Tolerance project launched an initiative that encouraged students to use their voices to provide advice to President Trump.

More than 1,000 K-12 graders responded, and their words were mailed to Trump Tower in January. Students responded with essays, letters, drawings and other art – all shared on social media with the hashtag #StudentsSpeak.

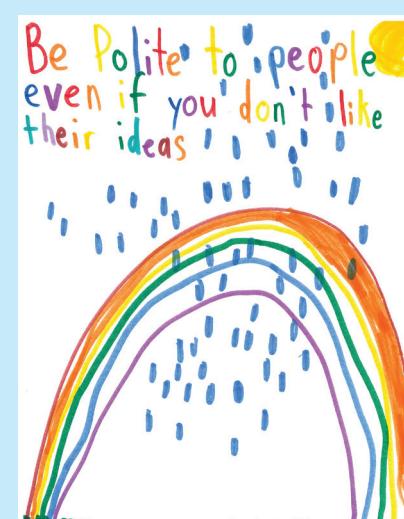

“We wanted students to know that even though most of them were unable to vote in the presidential election, they can still make their voices heard,” Teaching Tolerance Director Maureen Costello said. “The #StudentsSpeak initiative offered a productive way for students to share their thoughts with the new president.

It was also an opportunity for students to process their emotions after a contentious election that affected children as well as adults.”

Many children advised Trump to choose his words carefully before speaking. They also encouraged the president to use his power to better the country for everyone.

You may provide for the eventual distribution of assets, such as those held in retirement fund accounts or life insurance policies, potentially gaining tax or financial benefits.

After planning for the financial security of your family and loved ones, we hope you will consider joining Partners for the Future by making a planned gift to the SPLC.

For information about the many planned giving opportunities available at the SPLC — with no obligation — please contact our planned giving department by calling toll-free 1-888-414-7752 or by mailing the form below. You can also visit us online at www.SPLCenter.org/donate or email us at plannedgiving@splcenter.org.

If you have already included the SPLC in your will or estate plan, please contact us so we can update our records. We want to officially welcome you as a Partner for the Future!

Scroll of Remembrance

The Southern Poverty Law Center pays tribute to the memory of deceased supporters who included the SPLC in their wills or other planned gifts. The SPLC gratefully acknowledges their bequests, received from January 1, 2016, through January 31, 2017.

SPLC friends make tribute gifts

Dear Friends of the Center,

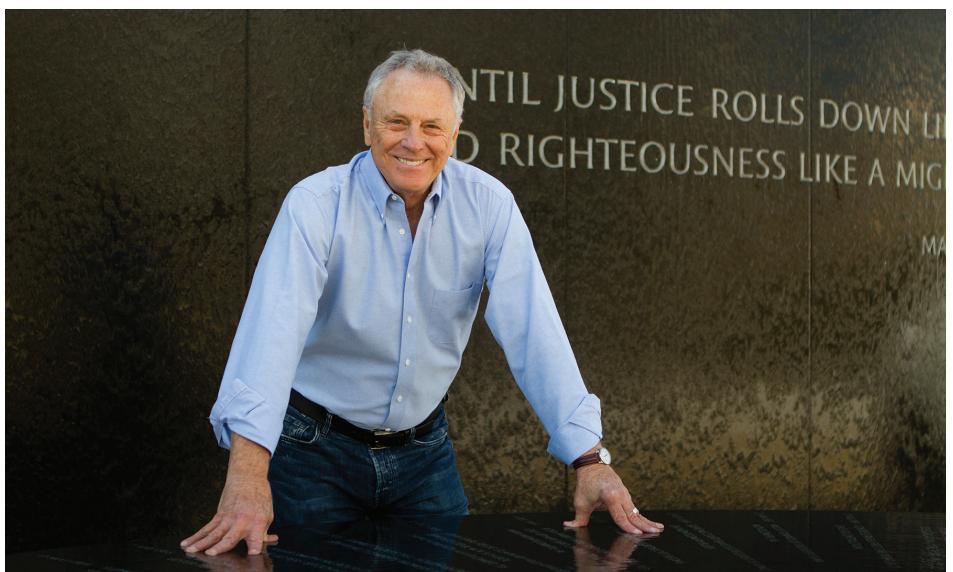

For more than 45 years, the Southern Poverty Law Center has stood as a beacon of equality in the Deep South, and that light will continue to shine throughout the nation in defense of those with no other champions. But the new era of Trump promises a renewed assault on civil rights.

I have hope, though, because in the last few months our supporters have stood strong with us, on the right side of history. We experienced an outpouring of moral and financial support from hundreds of thousands of people, some who've been with us since the beginning, some who are new to our cause of justice and tolerance. The encouragement came through correspondence, financial support, offers to volunteer, and more.

On behalf of my colleagues and our clients, thank you. We are not only encouraged but inspired by the resolve we've witnessed during these dangerous times. The people we help have nowhere else to turn, and they will need our advocacy now more than ever. But we are now set to take action in more cases than ever before and defend the democratic values at the foundation of our country.

The names on the following pages came to us alongside gifts of financial support. These names, more than 15,000, demonstrate the power of the people. The heft of this tribute list shows the weight of our collective commitment to this cause – to fight hate, seek justice and teach tolerance. I apologize for any errors or omissions on this list. If you sent us a tribute or memorial gift, and you don't find it listed on the following pages, please contact us so we can correct it.

— Morris Dees, Founder and Chief Trial Counsel
